

HURT IN HEART AND PURSE.

Pretty Miss Strauss Imposed Upon by the Sinner Mr. Summerfield, Late of San Francisco.

HE BORROWED RIGHT AND LEFT.

When He Had Worked all His Friends He Fled, Though the Cards for His Wedding Were Out.

Miss Bertha Strauss, a pretty young woman who lives at No. 328 East Fifty-second street, has been made the victim of a designing young man, who has played havoc with her affections and with her pocketbook. Her parents are rich and she can stand the financial part of her troubles, but the fact that she was to have been married to the man who has fooled her so badly brings tears to Miss Bertha's eyes when she thinks of how her acquaintances will smile as April 15, the date set for the wedding, will pass by without a ceremony.

SUMMERFIELD, THE FAITHLESS TRIFLER.
Eugene A. Summerfield is the man who was to have been the bridegroom. He is missing, with money borrowed right and left. He disappeared on Wednesday of last week and is thought to be either in Chicago or San Francisco. Summerfield is thirty-five years old. He has a suave manner. He came originally from San Francisco. He went to the World's Fair, where he met H. Herzog, of No. 29 East One Hundred and Fourteenth street, this city, and together with him ran a lemonade stand in the Fair grounds. Herzog liked him, and when, after the Fair, Summerfield came on to New York, the Herzogs took him to live with them in East One Hundred and Fourteenth street and introduced him to all their acquaintances. Summerfield pretended to be rich and hired a box in a safe deposit vault of which he exhibited the key in support of his assertion. He borrowed money from time to time from Mrs. Herzog, because he said he was temporarily embarrassed. He was soon introduced to the Strauss family, and took pains to make himself agreeable to Bertha, who is not only pretty but has $1000 in the bank. His flattery and attentions were favorably received by the young woman and they were soon deeply in love. She consented to become his wife, and some weeks ago their engagement was announced at a party given at the prospective bride's home. The wedding was set for April 15, and cards were sent out to scores of friends and relatives. Summerfield went to Miss Strauss

Wednesday of last week and said that he had bought a cigar stand on Fulton street, out of which he expected to make a good thing. He needed $50 temporarily, and would like to borrow it. The girl accompanied her lover to the bank, drew the money and let him have it. Mr. Herzog had introduced Summerfield to Winterberg & Graus, cigar manufacturers, of Eighty-seventh street and Third avenue, and from that firm he obtained $20 worth of cigars on credit. Simon Strauss, brother of Miss Bertha, who is employed as salesman for the Fisher Spice Mills, introduced his future

Mounted Officer Havey caught a runaway horse attached to a buggy at the same part of the East Drive. Joseph Stulzberger, of No. 64 First avenue, who was in the buggy, was unhurt.

At 1:35 P. M. a coach driven by H. Payneweather and owned by James Drennen, collided on the East Drive, near Eighty-fourth street, with a runaway about owned and driven by R. H. Eggleston, of No. 65 East Fifty-fifth street. No one was hurt, but the vehicle suffered in the crash. The drivers exchanged cards.

Too Early.
(From Judge.)

Featherstone—I picked a winner at the races yesterday.
Ringway—Then you didn't have to walk home?
Featherstone (sighs)—Yes, I did. There were five other races after that.

Faddish.
(From Truth.)

McCorkle—Isn't Briggs naturally a lazy man?
McCrackin—Not exactly lazy; but he seems to think it is unhealthy to work between meals.

(From Puck.)

Algy—Fredly made an awful mistake the other day.
Cholly—Did he?
Algy—Yes. He spoke of the Elevated road when he meant the overhead train.

CHASING RUNAWAYS IN THE PARK.

The Mounted Police Had a Lively Time, but No One Was Hurt.

Three runaways and a collision added to the work of the Central Park police yesterday. S. H. Mason, Jr., Secretary of the New York Driving Club, was responsible for the first. He called at the Plaza Hotel about noon to see Fred Vanderbeek, the bookkeeper, and left his horse and wagon outside. The horse took fright and ran across Fifth avenue to the park entrance, where Officer Kennedy stopped it. W. E. Briggs, of No. 217 East Seventy-first street, was thrown from his wagon by a runaway horse on the East Drive, at 4:15 P. M. The horse broke from the wagon and was stopped at One Hundred and First street and the East Drive by Mounted Officer Doyle. An hour later

What is little about Little?

Only his prices—nothing more. Not his stock—that is very large. Not his way of doing business—that is the very best for a cash or on credit! So very little is little about Little, and even that little is not so little when you consider how little virtue there is in other credit systems.

Little's credit system is,

"Pay Little little by little,"

and his motto is,

"A little cash is enough at Little's."
